Brown will not wear the Tammany collar. He asserted his independence in the Senate at Albany. His turning down was determined on, but his friend, Henjamin Wood, insisted that Brown be taken care of. In consideration of his loyalty to and support of Tammany Hall his request was granted.

What to do with the obstreperous Brown was the next question. District-Attorney Nicoli refused a renomination. A man was wanted in his place who would run the office to suit Tammany Hall. Fellows was the man.

So it was decided to send Brown to Washington, where he could be as independent as he pleased.

E. T. Fitznatrick, one of the candidates for Coroner, was turned down by Mayor Grant. He refused to take a $4,000 Tax Commissionership recently.
